LEGION CONDEMNS RED PACT

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

A LOCAL farmer tells The Star a heartbreaking story today. He came to town with two bales of cotton, sold them for $111, converted the check into currency—and lost the money! If publicity and an honest citizenry can help this farmer he will get his money back. Furthermore, his personal tragedy sheds a somber and thoughtful light upon certain political theories that we are wont to play with in thoughtless moments.

We talk about "sharing the wealth"—but there isn't a man among us who deep down in his heart doesn't know that wealth is precious and hard-earned, the most individual, non-sharable thing on earth.

The lesson is only driven home to us when someone we know is struck down by a misfortune like this.

Last money too often is anybody's money.

It is a cruel fate that makes a man work through a whole season only to see his reward scattered to the wide world.

We do believe—all of us—that the rich should pay more than the poor when supporting the common burden of government; but confiscation we do not believe in.

A man can put up with fate, no matter how cruel, for fate we know to be treacherous; but a stealing government he will not put up with—for government, the handiwork of thinking men, was erected for our protection.

One little incident like this gives us more insight into the nature of the world and its people than all the pages of history.

Untold Stories of Long Portray Him as Jester and Czar

Sometimes a Model of Dignity, and Then Again, a Political Clown

A RUTHLESS RULER

"Oscar!"—to Gov. Allen—"I Made You, and That Quick I'll Break You"

This is the last of a series of stories by Paul Harrison, NEA Service staff correspondent, on personalities outstanding in the Louisiana turmoil.

By PAUL HARRISON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent NEW ORLEANS—(P)—Remember the time Huey offered to fight anybody in the night club? Not much like the Sands Point fracas! This was when he was taking boxing lessons from Irwin Poche and—

"Yeah, and Poche was sitting right by him when he got so brave. Did you hear about what he said to Senator Nye? They were kidding each other."

"Here's a good one: An old farmer who's been hearing about the Share-the-Wealth plan came to Baton Rouge to collect his Ford car, his radio, and his $3700. Huey had him sent right into the office, called in the photo—"

"He had a sensu-mor!" They was a traffic cop stopped him—"

"Here's a story that's never been told—"

"I like the guy because—"

"Could he cuss? Listen—"

And so it goes, informing any estimate of Huey Long, the man, you ought to edge into the reminiscent groups cluttering the hotel lobbies, or bent an ear to the conferences in the cocktail bars. A biography of the Kingfish could—and probably will—be written in anecdote.

—And Allen Jumped

He was an arrogant autocrat, that Long. Only a few weeks ago he and Gov. O. K. Allen met some important non-Louisianians in a conference in the governor's office.

After a little talk Huey asked irrelevantly: "By the way, Governor, have you got those papers I talked to you about?"

"Ah, yes," drawled the puppet executive, on his dignity. "I'll see if I can find them after awhile. Now, gentlemen—"

"Oscar!" barked the dictator. "Remember how quick I made you?"

"Why, sure, Senator," soothed Allen hurriedly.

"Well, you so-and-so, that's just how quick I can break you. GO GET!"

County Seeks to Avert Jury Call

No Civil Panels, and Probably No Criminal Ones, During October

A possibility that no jury trials will be heard at the October term of court developed Wednesday with the announcement that petit jurors would not be summoned for duty if the five pending felony cases can be disposed of without jury trials.

The announcement was made by Sheriff Jim Bearden following a conference with Circuit Judge Dexter Bush.

The announcement was seen as an economy measure. An attempt will be made to dispose of the five felony cases without jury trials; however, if the defendants insist upon trial by a jury then the petit jurors will be summoned.

An attempt also will be made to dispose of civil cases without a jury. Cases not cleared from the docket will be continued until the January term of court, Sheriff Bearden said.

The grand jury meets Monday, October 7, to hear evidence in the five felony cases and to take up other matters that may arise.

Oklahoma Refuses Office to Women

Constitutional Amendment to Qualify Them Apparently Beaten

OKLAHOMA CITY.—(P)—The early trend in a special state election indicated Tuesday night Oklahoma apparently will continue to be the only state in the union to deny women the right to hold major state offices, but will pension its aged and exempt its home-steaders from taxation.

Early unofficial returns from 438 of the state's 3,375 precincts gave 16,012 for the office-right amendment and 20,712 against.

The returns indicated the amendment, basis of a vigorous campaign by feminine political leaders and supported by Gov. E. W. Marland, had borne the brunt of a bitter fight against four measures submitted by the legislature.

Grand Jury May Probe Hoey Death

Way Is Paved by Open Verdict From Pennsylvania Coroner's Jury

WESCHESTER, Pa.—(P)—A double-barreled grand jury investigation was held possible Wednesday as the result of an open verdict returned by a coroner's jury into the death of Evelyn Hoey, blues-singer, at the farm home of Henry H. Rogers, 3d.

The verdict itself paved the way for grand jury investigation into the death.

Stamps Farmer Is Shot; He May Die

Clyde Knighton Critically Wounded, Lee Beasley Held After Fight

STAMPS, Ark.—(P)—Clyde Knighton, 40, farmer, was wounded possibly fatally at his home four miles north of here Wednesday and officers are holding a man listed as Lee Beasley, 26, pending the outcome of Knighton's injuries.

Knighton, a former Texarkana streetcar motorman, was shot twice early in the morning in what was said to have been an argument over crops.

Beasley is a tenant on Knighton's place.

Griffin Smith Hits New Hospital Plan

Cites Waste in Spending Millions, Yet Permitting Duplication

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—A substantial part of the staggering state indebtedness of Arkansas could have been avoided, and if business and professional men had taken a militant stand against unnecessary expenditures it would not have incurred State Comptroller Griffin Smith told members of the Kiwanis club Tuesday.

Necessity for unity between business, professional and political groups was emphasized by Mr. Smith, who declared that "the public note for $115,000,000 has been executed within the past seven or eight years."

Between $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 of this amount was unnecessary, he said.

"As a rule taxpayers do not object to paying their assessments if they are convinced that the money will be honestly and economically used, but they do protest when it is wasted," he continued.

"Administration in Arkansas for the next 10 years will be more in the nature of liquidation than construction in meeting its tremendous obligations; every dollar of available revenue must be applied in payment of the public note, even though the taxpayers had very little to say about its execution."

The new State Hospital at Benton, costing nearly $5,000,000, was cited as a pertinent example of misuses of public funds.

"When funds now available have been expended, the 30 new units will accommodate only 1,600 of the 3,300 patients, with the result that more than 2,000 must remain in the old quarters here," Mr. Smith said. "There will be duplication of operation, division of activity and greatly increased cost."

Mr. Smith said he had been advised by architects that an expenditure of $750,000 to $1,000,000 on the old building and grounds would have provided ample quarters for the hospital's entire patient load. Use of $250,000 taken annually from income taxes to overhaul the old property would have enabled the hospital to complete the work without incurring indebtedness, and the same funds could have been used in the future for maintenance, he said.

Hope Farmer Loses $111, Sale Price of Two Bales of Cotton

J. W. Downs Puts Bills in Shirt-Pocket—Button Comes Off, and With It Disappears His Season's Cash

J. W. Downs, farmer living near Hope, reported to The Star at noon Wednesday that he had lost $111 in greenbacks somewhere in the downtown section of Hope.

Mr. Downs said that he had sold two bales of cotton for $111.70. He cashed the check at a Hope bank and then put the greenbacks in a shirt-pocket with a rubber band around them.

About an hour later Mr. Downs said that he discovered the button on his shirt pocket was gone—and with it went the $111 in bills.

All that Mr. Downs had to show for the two bales of cotton was 70 cents that he had placed in his overall's pocket. Mr. Downs immediately reported his loss to The Star and asked that an appeal be broadcast. He offered a reward for return of the money.

Ethiopia Calls for Probe of Neutrals

Will Accept Findings of Any Impartial Commission, Says Emperor

By the Associated Press

Two striking developments in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute originated Wednesday in Rome and Addis Ababa, capitals of the opposing nations.

The Italian government announced officially that Italy would never be the first to transfer the conflict to Europe.

Almost simultaneously Emperor Haile Selassie asked the League of Nations to send a neutral commission to Ethiopia to determine who might be the aggressor in the event of hostilities.

The emperor said Ethiopia would abide by the findings of such a commission.

New British Message

ROME, Italy.—(P)—The Italian government announced in an official communique Wednesday that Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign minister, told Premier Mussolini of Italy that Great Britain is "particularly desirous of eliminating all useless misunderstanding between the two countries."

The communique said this statement was a personal message delivered to Mussolini through Sir Eric Drummond, British ambassador to Rome, on Monday.

League Moves Cautiously

GENEVA, Switzerland.—(P)—The Council of the League of Nations faced a grave decision Tuesday night after its subcommittee abandoned efforts to find a solution for peace in East Africa.

What further steps will be taken must be decided by the council. In view of the tremendous possibilities involved in one false move at this juncture, a strong sentiment was noticeable among the delegates to avoid any precipitous action.

A report will be made to the council by the subcommittee, composed of Great Britain, France, Spain, Poland and Turkey.

The report will be delivered to the Council Thursday morning. It is up to the council to determine what action can be taken, but it could set in motion procedure under Article 15 by which to ease war breaks out, sanctions could be applied.

U.S. May Forbid Munitions Sales

Exports of All Kinds May Be Put Under Embargo in European War

WASHINGTON.—(P)—A temporarily secret list of war implements, export and import of which soon will be licensed as a neutrality safeguard, was drafted Tuesday by the National Munitions Control Board.

It now goes to President Roosevelt. When approved and proclaimed, the State Department said, "all manufacturers, exporters and importers of arms and munitions and implements of war must register with the department, and, after November 23, these articles may not be exported from or imported into this country without a license issued by the department to cover each shipment."

In the event of foreign conflict, the draft was expected to form the basis of a presidential proclamation clamping a mandatory embargo on "arms, munitions and implements of war" at the direction of the neutrality law.

A demand for a complete prohibition against selling to nations at war was voiced in New York by Bernard M. Baruch, who urged special legislation in the last congress to take the profits out of war. Upon returning from a European trip, Baruch said:

"If we want to observe neutrality we must sell nothing to nations at war. There isn't a such animal as non-war material. Everything is a munition. Remember that after a country is at war, wheat, food, clothing and all the necessities of life required to care for the civilian population are as important as gas and bombs."

At one time a hair's breadth was an actual measure and consisted of the width of 16 hairs laid side by side.

St. Louis Session Urges Withdrawal of U.S. Recognition

Convention Adopts Report Urging Regular Army of 165,000 Men

BID BY CALIFORNIA

That State Wants Next Convention in Move Against Communism

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(P)—The American Legion Wednesday asked the United States to withdraw its recognition of Soviet Russia.

The delegates cheered as J. J. Twomey, of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee on Americanism and trade, offered the resolution.

After commending legislation for national defense passed by the last congress the national Legion convention adopted a report calling for concentration of national defense methods.

The resolution urged a standing army of 165,000 enlisted men, with 14,000 officers, augmented by 210,000 national guardsmen.

The report also urged the continuation of officers' training camps, Civilian Military Training Camps (CMTC) and the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) in the schools.

Also recommended was a treaty navy on a parity with any navy in the world.

California Invites

ST. LOUIS.—(P)—Governor Frank F. Merriam of California called on the American Legion at its convention session Wednesday to meet in Los Angeles next year as "a demonstration" against radicalism.

He said: "California is the front line of defense against a determined drive to establish a communistic government in the United States."

Woman Arrested for Money Theft

Marked Bills Alleged Taken From Deputy Sheriff by Opal Walls

Opal Walls, rooming house operator, was released from the city jail Wednesday under $100 bond for her appearance in municipal court next Monday on a petit larceny charge.

The rooming house proprietor was lodged in jail late Tuesday afternoon following the disappearance of $11 from the room of Buster Collins, Oklahoma deputy sheriff, who had taken rooms at the Walls rooming house.

Collins complained to Chief of Police Ridgill over the disappearance of the money and presented serial numbers of the two bills, a $10 and $1 bill. After an investigation, Chief Ridgill announced that the $10 bill was recovered. It was found in possession of the rooming house operator, Chief Ridgill said.

He also announced that serial numbers given him of the alleged stolen money tallied. The $1 bill has not been recovered.

Alfred E. Smith Flays Communism

Attacks Religion as Well as Sound Economics, He Tells Catholics

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(P)—A prelate of the Catholic church and a cleric of lesser rank, addressing pilgrims to the seventh national Eucharistic Congress Tuesday scored leaders of government whom they accused of fostering international strife.

Archbishop John T. McNichols, of Cincinnati, O., labelled them "proud leaders in their own conceits."

The Rev. James M. Gillis, New York editor of the Catholic World, described their activities as "high-handed autocracy."

Alfred E. Smith told the congress Tuesday night that "the way to unity is by communism, not Communism."

"My Catholicism says I should know and love God and serve Him to the end that I will be happy for all eternity in the world to come. If my Catholicism is wrong, there is no use being a man. I'd rather be a horse."

Smith assured the gathering that "Communism and the teachings that go with it, are about as wrong as anything could be in this world."

"I do not propose to deal with the economic features of Communism for the simple reason that I do not understand them," he said. "I have met nobody who does. But there is one thing you can understand and that's the result of a trial of Communism."

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

This is the first of three articles by Dr. Fishbein, in which views reports of three famous British physicians on the progress of medicine in the last quarter century.

Vast Medical Advance Made in 25 Years

The remarkable progress that world medicine has made in the last quarter century is revealed graphically by the reports of three distinguished British physicians in as many different fields. To Sir Walter Langdon Brown, regius professor of physics at the University of Cambridge, the outstanding advances of the last 25 years come in the field of bacteriology, with all the new work that has been done on antitoxins, vaccines, and similar preparations, the discovery of radioactivity, and recognition of the principle of internal secretion in the glands.

One knowledge of deficiency diseases has developed only since 1912. True, there was some realization as early as 1897 that a condition called beriberi would result in people who lived solely on polished rice.

But even at the end of the World War it was still being disputed whether beriberi was due to some error of diet or to living in the dark. Now we know both of these factors are involved.

So startling was the revelation of the effects of Vitamin D on the human body that its use was carried to an extreme, and ultra-violet rays began to be applied for all sorts of diseases. The history of the use of other vitamins is equally dramatic, and now we have some of the vitamins in pure form.

Closely related to advancements in vitamin knowledge have been the studies of the internal secretions, the vital substances poured by the glands directly into the blood. Probably most significant was the discovery of insulin in 1922, which has revolutionized the treatment of diabetes.

Then came recognition of the effects of the parathyroid glands and, more recently, determination of many hormones coming from the pituitary gland. This gland contains so many active principles and is so closely related to the action of the other glands, that the great English physician calls it the leader of the endocrine orchestra.

As a result of these studies of the glands, it has been found that the human body uses chemical agents for its own regulation. Indeed, it has been shown that every nervous impulse liberates a chemical substance and that various drugs can facilitate or inhibit the effects of these chemical substances on the tissues of the body.

Out of these studies has come the knowledge of allergy and the special sensitivities of bodies to certain substances. Quite as significant for human health has been the new knowledge of X-rays and radium. Use of the X-ray has been extended gradually with the combination of chemical substances which pick out special organs.

Besides the value of X-ray for diagnosis, we have its application in treatment of new growths and various forms of blood disorders.

In 1935, Sir Walter Langdon Brown points out, the application of psychology to medicine was in its infancy. Since then the work of Sigmund Freud has been more fully appreciated and the great English physician believes that "the services of Freud to knowledge have been as great as those of Darwin."

Freud introduced several new methods of investigation into human psychology, and more and more doctors are beginning to apply Freudian ideas and methods in handling cases with mental aspects. And there are very few cases indeed which do not have such aspects.

Louis Kayoes Baer Easily in Fourth

Detroit Negro Whips Californian Decisively—Holds for Title

By EDWARD J. NEIL

Associated Press Correspondent

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mercuries, say Joe Louis swept down on Max Baer Tuesday night with the most devastating whirlwind of punches the prize ring has seen since the heyday of Jack Dempsey, snatching him to the floor three times, and crushed him in four rounds before the first $1,000,000 crowd of boxing's new era.

Baer was knocked out after two minutes and 50 seconds of the fourth round. He was little less than 12 minutes he faced Louis, Baer took a beating so unmerciful, so complete that the crowd of 90,000 nearly filling the huge ball park, gasped.

Three times the giant, curly headed Californian, trying to grin through the crimson mask of his battered features, was hammered to the floor, twice in the third, for counts of nine and four. The last time he was saved by the bell, hauled to his corner by his chief second, Jack Dempsey.

When Louis flits into his head again in the fourth, Baer is sent to one knee by the crowd across the ring from his own corner. So badly had he been beaten, so completely was his thrashing that his eyes were opaque, his knee trembled, as he slowly shook his head from side to side. The blood from his face was pouring over his chest as he stayed on one knee until Referee Arthur Donovan finished the count of 10.

Crowd Boos Max Across the ring, Dempsey in his high pitched voice, was screaming to him, pleading with him to get up, but the magnificently muscled playboy, who hadn't flinched once, couldn't hear him any more than he could the roar of 90,000 screaming voices, beating down on the ring in thunderous waves who could almost feel.

Over his head swung the final sweep of 10, and probably with it the end of his career, for he earned close to $300,000 Tuesday night and he said he was through if he lost. Dempsey rushed across the ring, dragged him back to the corner in his arms.

Then the crowd broke forth again, this time in a hail of boos, as Baer, only three months ago heavyweight champion of the world, raised his battered head, looked around him. Agitated, he had stayed there on one knee when he might have risen again. Max buried his head in a towel and staggered down the ring steps, out of a prize ring perhaps for the last time, down the aisle, the last trace of clowning and bravado for which he was famous, gone.

21st Knockout Twenty-one knockouts in 25 fights. Louis now has scored, and there seems no end to the amazing fighting possibilities of the 21-year-old sensation from Detroit.

This was just another day in Joe Louis' life, though it brought back the million dollar cash that everyone thought died with Rickard, though it came to a climax under the blazing ring lights before the biggest crowd ever to see a sporting event in New York.

Joe, never lifting his gaze from the sunny papers, granted Baer's every request for special gloves at the Boxing Commission Tuesday, went to his friend's home and took a nap, married Marvin Trotter his 19-year-old fiancée from Chicago at 7 p. m., and climbed into the ring very promptly at 10.

They rang the bell on him, and he went to his chores, crouching slightly, no hint of an expression around his broad, pink lips, no light in his dark eyes. He might have been going out there to spar with a friend in the back yard, instead of meeting this crisis that guarantees him a shot at Jimmy Braddock's heavyweight title next summer with the odds overwhelming in his favor to win it.

His left hand was a piston, accurate as though it were running in a groove, and as Baer fenced carefully with him, Joe started his plan of destruction.

Baer an Easy Target His attack never changed. His left snapped out, sometimes a half dozen times in a row, sometimes a dozen and always Baer's curly black head, deviously grinning face, was right in the middle of the other end of it. Once Baer's head was poked back far enough, Baer was up out of his back, enough, in flashed Joe's left hook, accurate as the flick of a black snake whip.

In his dressing room afterward Baer said he was through with the ring forever. His manager, Anell Hoffman, and Dempsey, tried to console him, agreeing that was best.

"They want to save him from any more of what he took Tuesday night. They don't believe, and 90,000 people now agree with them, that any man could take more of that, and retain his reason."

Baer weighed 210½ pounds. Louis 193½.

Cards Win, Stay in Race for Flag

Hallahan Holds Pittsburgh to 3 Hits—Cubs and Cards Wednesday

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Bill Hallahan gave up only three hits as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated Pittsburgh, 11 to 2, Tuesday to give warning to the league-leading Cubs that the 1937 world champions are not yet out of the National League race.

The Cards nided Hallahan with 11 hits, including home runs by Jim Colins and Leo Duracher, and the Pirates committed three errors as St. Louis gained revenge for the 12-12 rout by the Buccaneers Monday.

It was Hallahan's fourteenth victory of an erratic season. His return to form in July aided the Cardinals in their climb to the top, then he slumped. Tuesday's win reduced the Chicago lead to three games and Wednesday the Cubs tangle here with the Cards in a five-game series that will determine the 1935 champion of the National League.

The Cards need five victories to win the championship but four out of five would bring them a tie and require a play-off. The Deans are ready. Paul Hines, slated to start against Lou Wancko, Dizzy probably will pitch Thursday.

"Why is the Communist state attacking religion? Why is it preaching a doctrine that there is no God? Time was when an atheist was one in a mob. Today atheism is organized. It is organized for the reason that there exists an arbitrary assumption that religion is the weapon of the capitalist class and therefore must be destroyed. The Communist youth is being trained in an anti-Christian basis. He is being taught that man is made to the image and likeness of society and not the image of God."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Right to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If bile bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blocks up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sick and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmonious, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. See.

The leaves of Turkish tobacco are strung one by one like beads (see how it is done in the picture). After the leaves are strung they are packed in bales (see picture) — sometimes as many as 80,000 leaves to the bale.

We have on hand at all times for CHESTERFIELD cigarettes upwards of 350,000 bales of Turkish tobacco...

The pleasing aroma and flavor of Turkish tobacco is almost necessary if you want a good cigarette.

Turkish tobacco is more costly when you take into account that you have to pay 35c a pound duty, but we have to have it to blend with our mild ripe home-grown tobaccos.

It helps make Chesterfields milder, it helps give them better taste. Just try them.

Untold Stories

THOSE PAPERS!

Allen went precipitately. There was no squalling. Huey-the-Shrewd knew all about his henchmen—more about their affairs than they knew about his. A detail of federal operatives came to Louisiana to look into the taxable incomes of members of the Long machine. Soon they were in a position to bring about the indictment of one of Long's weaker lieutenants.

One day the Long camp was thrown into a dither by a report that the tax evader had agreed to give information in return for the leniency of a fine instead of imprisonment.

Long sent for the man, cursed him in front of several other subalterns, then said: "It doesn't make any difference to me whether you go to Atlanta or whether you rot in Angola. Now go ahead and squeal if you want to!"

There was a sinister implication in the Kingfish's ultimatum. By Atlanta he meant the federal penitentiary. Angola is the state penal farm. At this writing, the lieutenant hasn't squealed.

No Foolin' With Huey
A good many people admired the Kingfish for the direct though often ruthless way he drove toward any objective. Once he heard that a town unfriendly to him was enriching itself at the expense of passing motorists—fining them heavily for alleged speeding.

Long sent a state officer to the scene. When the village constable arrested a driver, the state man would come up and arrest them both—leaving the motorist at the edge of town, but booking the constable on a minor small nuisance charge.

A second town employed similar tactics, but went into the higher courts to defend itself when the governor tried to retaliate. "Well," concluded Long, in telling the story afterward, "those people got so dogged on unpleasant that there was only one way left to lick 'em. I revoked the town's charter."

Let's Change the Law
Another yarn he liked to tell was about the time he promised to go fishing with one of his sons as soon as the latter's school term had ended. The day came and he was reminded of his commitment.

"By golly!" he exclaimed. "I don't know whether the law will let us fish for much at this time of year."

So he looked up the statute; no bass smaller than a specified length; no trout at all; none of this—none of that. "That law ain't gonna spoil our fishin' trip, son," he declared, and reached for the telephone and called Baton Rouge. To a secretary in the capital he dictated a new law which said in effect that any citizen of Louisiana can fish for any kind of fish, of any size, in any quantity, at any time.

The law was passed that afternoon and the Kingfish went fishing, legally.

The Pajama Incident
Remember the incident, the grim, diplomatic incident, in 1930, when Governor Long, wearing green pajamas, received a formal call from the commander of the German cruiser Emden and the German consul in New Orleans?

Not all that story has been told. It was told to me by Alfred Danziger, attorney and close friend of Long, as an example of Long's little-known penchant for horseplay.

He called in Danziger with an announcement that war was threatening between Germany and "the Republic of Louisiana." "Fix it," he ordered.

So Danziger arranged for a return call next morning and an apology and Huey would have to be correctly attired.

"Full dress suit?" asked Huey. Well, no, maybe that wouldn't be best for morning wear. He should dress in morning coat and striped trousers.

"I ain't got none of those," said Huey. He didn't even have a tie that wasn't a riot of stripes and with "Huey Pierce Long, Governor of Louisiana" embroidered on the bottom of it.

Huey Clowns for Party
But clothing was found for him, even to yellow gloves and a borrowed top hat. Seymour Weiss, dandy of the Kingfish's band, was doubtful about the topper.

"Listen, Governor," he cautioned, "there'll be photographers there tomorrow, and if they take a picture of you in a silk hat you'll never get another vote in Winnfield."

So the Kingfish refused to wear a topper. Spurred spats, too. But the rest of the outfit amused him and he kept his party up most of the night—and in hysterics—with his burlesquing of grandeur and rehearsals of a speech of apology.

"Sir," he would declaim, brandishing his cane and wearing his morning coat backward. "I have been only a barefoot boy who was 12 years old before he even saw a boat of any kind, much less a German commander. I have been totally unaccustomed to diplomacy or international courtesies. I only got to be governor by accident—" and so on.
